Allston Man's Bloody Coat Murder Clue

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 8—An Allston, Mass., man with a "blood-stained coat" was held at Portland, Me., today for questioning in connection with the slaying here of eight-year-old Barbara Driscoll.

Meantime, the child victim was buried in Calvary cemetery after a touching funeral service, in the course of which her mother collapsed.

COAT IS SEIZED

The man held in Portland was picked up by police after a second-hand store clerk had reported to have tried to sell a coat apparently stained with blood.

Portland authorities said the man they took in to custody admitted having been in Portsmouth, but claimed he left there early in July.

He was not wearing the "blood-stained" coat when he was picked up, but police obtained it later from a shop where he had allegedly sold it.

The garment was wrapped and sealed for future laboratory examination.

Police here made immediate arrest.

Duce Recalls Boston Envoy

Dr. Guido Segre, for the past three years Italian consul-general in Boston, has been recalled to Rome, it became known today.

Dr. Segre, a Jew, said that he received the orders recalling him some time prior to public announcement of Mussolini's decree exiling Italian Jews.

"Farther than that," Dr. Segre said today, "I do not know." Rome dispatches, however, today stated that Mussolini's new anti-Jew policy is being made effective as against all members of the Italian diplomatic and consular services, and that Jewish officials everywhere abroad are being recalled.

Dr. and Mrs. Segre have been living on Amory street, Brookline.

They have three children. Dr. Segre has been active and is well-liked in Italian-American affairs in Boston. He has been an especially eloquent supporter of Mussolini's policies.

He is 45 years old, a graduate of the University of Turin, and formerly served in the consular service, in Spalato, Asiatic Turkey, North China, Yugoslavia and France.

RECALLED BY IL DUCE—Italian-Jewish Dr. Guido Segre, consul-general in Boston, has been recalled to Rome by Dictator Mussolini as a result, it is believed, of a purge of all Jews from government positions. Dr. Segre is shown with his wife here.

Mrs. Roosevelt Phones:

Jim Cheerful Facing Knife

The surgical operation James Roosevelt is facing in Rochester, Minn., is an ordeal "there's no use worrying about," his mother, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, told the Boston Evening American today.

Over long distance telephone, she said:

"The doctor decided James must have an operation. So he's going to have it, and that's all there is to it."

"It's something there's no use worrying about. James is very cheerful."

MAY CONTINUE DIET

Asked if James expected the operation to free him from the "simple living" regime his stomach condition recently imposed on him, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"That's a question nobody can answer now. After the operation has been performed, we'll know what to expect. The doctors will tell James then what we'll have to do and when he can get back to work."

Mrs. Roosevelt was then asked: "Can't you give your son's many friends here in Boston a reassuring message?"

UNDER KNIFE NEXT WEEK

She said: "The doctor's bulletin this morning told all there was to say. My son spent a comfortable night, his condition is excellent."

Mrs. Roosevelt cancelled plans for her return east today, in order to remain with James.

She was visiting him at St. Mary's hospital, a Mayo Clinic institution, when she was reached by the Boston Evening American's telephone call.

Doctors said the operation, made advisable by a "small gastric ulcer," would probably be performed early next week.

OPERATION NECESSARY

James Roosevelt first went to Minnesota for treatment last May. It was hoped then that medical treatment and a strict diet might cure his ailment.

Today's bulletin, said however: "The ulcer has not healed successfully. . . Surgery is deemed necessary to obviate further complications."

"Preoperative preparation is to permit certain acute manifestations to subside."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP)—When James Roosevelt undergoes an operation at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., next week, WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins will be on hand as a sympathetic friend who experienced the same operation at the same hospital some time ago.

Hopkins said today he would visit the President's son at Rochester "within the next few days."

Hunt Lost Teacher in Vt. Wood

DANVILLE, Vt., Sept. 8—A posse of police and civilians today combed dense woods between this town and Peacham for an attractive high school teacher who mysteriously disappeared 12 hours earlier.

The missing girl is Alice B. Washburn of Bethel, a Middlebury College graduate. She was recently appointed to the staff of the Danville high school.

Her distracted mother, Mrs. Alice Washburn, joined the searching party as its members plodded in near-freezing temperatures through heavy underbrush for some clue to the girl's whereabouts.

Mrs. Washburn disappeared last night while taking a bicycle trip on the outskirts of Danville.

Her machine, broken down, was found abandoned on the roadside. There are no houses in the vicinity, nor is there any vehicular transportation back to Danville from that point.

Albert Frye, a farmer living in the vicinity, told searchers a young woman answering the description of the missing teacher called at his house at dawn today. He said she appeared very tired, but did not disclose her identity or give any reason for her visit.

Little Girl Pawn In Custody Battle

Pawn in a mother-love court problem that might have puzzled wise old Solomon himself, pretty, brown-eyed little Sally Sieve played with her dolls today in the home of her Brookline foster parents.

When you're only seven years old, worry gets you down.

And Sally, very plainly worried, kept asking Mrs. Leo Sieve:

"Mamma, I'm not going to have to go away and leave you and Mary Jane, am I?"

Mary Jane is Sally's favorite doll.

Mrs. Sieve said: "No, darling. This is your home and you'll never have to go away. You and Mary Jane mustn't be afraid."

But to a Boston Evening American reporter, Mrs. Sieve explained: "Sally's real mother couldn't keep her when she was born. The state took the baby girl, boarded her out for awhile, then gave her to us for adoption."

MOTHER WON'T SIGN

"Now, the mother, Mrs. Eva Antosh, has refused to sign the adoption papers and is opposing our petition in Dedham court."

"It's pretty cruel to Sally. She has only seen her real mother twice in her life. We always told her she was an orphan."

"We never had children, but we love Sally as much as we could a daughter of our own."

"She has a playroom of her own here. She has every advantage money can give her. We plan to send her to finishing school and college."

STEEPFATHER REFUSES

"It seems strange that her mother should make trouble at this late date. She never did anything for Sally or even tried to see her for seven long years."

"Mr. Antosh, the mother's present husband, only earns $19 a week, according to evidence that was given in court. We were told he didn't want to have Sally in his home and warned Mrs. Antosh he wouldn't have the child brought there."

"You saw my husband kiss Sally goodbye before he went to his office. He's simply crazy about the little girl."

"She calls him 'papa,' just as she calls me 'mama.'"

SALLY'S BIG WORRY

"She didn't even recognize her real mother when she saw her in court."

"But, of course, Mrs. Antosh said her heart had been broken when she couldn't keep her—and she wants her now."

"Judge McCool took the case under advisement."

"He ought to see Sally as you see her now—afraid she'll lose her dolls and her playroom."

OWN MOTHER'S STORY

While Mrs. Sieve, in her pleasant apartment in Greenway court, Brookline, told her side of the custody story today, Mrs. Antosh was in her more humble home, in Medway, hoping that Judge McCool would decide in her favor.

She testified in court that poverty and unemployment had made it impossible for her to pay little Sally's board while Sally was a state ward.

She even lacked funds to send the baby a birthday card, she said. "I never promised to let the Sieves adopt her," she testified.

COURT HOLDS FATE—Whether 7-year-old Sally Sieve stays "from now on" with her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sieve of Brookline, or is returned to her mother, Mrs. Eva Antosh, is in the hands (and heart) of Dedham court. Mrs. Sieve says the mother has not visited the child in seven years. The girl is pictured here with her dolls . . . while awaiting outcome of custody battle.

BETTY MONTGOMERY
Ends Rift Talk
(Copyright, 1938)

Montgomerys Coming Here

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 8 (INS)—Giving a conclusive answer to the as-separation rumors, Betty and Robert Montgomery pulled out of Hollywood yesterday bound for a vacation in New York and on their New England farm at South Hamilton, Mass.

In the last month, the film colony gossips have reported a rift in the Montgomery home and have predicted that theirs would be the next Hollywood marriage to go on the rocks.

But the couple's departure would seem to tell a different story.

They are accompanied by their two children, Betty and Bob, Jr., and they are following their usual plan of a summer vacation in the East.

Montgomery is not due back in Hollywood for six weeks. At that time he starts his new MGM picture, "The Earl of Chicago."

Baby Girl's Cry Gives Fire Alarm

The cries of Carol Ann Shanks, infant daughter of Mrs. Margaret Shanks, led to discovery of a hall fire in a Boylston street, Brookline, apartment house early today.

Awakened by her child, the mother smelled smoke and found a basket of rubbish blazing in the hallway. She awakened other occupants and sounded an alarm.

Fire Chief Selden Allen said the ordered an investigation. Fire was apparently caused by a carelessly discarded cigarette, and

U. S. to Continue Mayor Hague Probe

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (INS)—Published reports that the Department of Justice has discontinued its investigation into alleged abridgment of civil rights by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City were categorically denied today.

Assistant Attorney General Brian McMahon, who would make recommendation to Attorney General Cummings in such a matter, said emphatically the Hague investigation is still on.

Fortune for Maid, Relatives Cut Off

Miss Mary S. McGuinness, Rosemary street, Jamaica Plain, a former maid in her employ, was named today in the will of Mabelle C. Davis of Brookline to receive a bequest of $20,000.

The will, filed in Dedham probate court, gives $135,000 to other former employes and friends, and $125,000 to charitable institutions. It makes no mention of three first cousins living on Beacon street, Boston.

The only relative to receive a bequest is another cousin, William F. Sprague of Quincy, Ill.

FORTUNES FOR OTHERS

Sprague receives $10,000. George E. Hoyt, Nashua street, Somerville, the Davis chauffeur, is named to receive $5000.

Bequests to friends were as follows:

Mrs. Herbert T. Lane, Newton Center, $25,000;

Mrs. Marcus Lincoln, Marlboro street, Boston, $15,000;

Miss Hazel J. Spoon, Keene, N. H., $20,000;

Mrs. William Ballard, Fairfield, Ct., $15,000;

Attorney Wilfred H. Smart, Cambridge, $10,000;

Mrs. Herbert G. Ripley, Newtonville, $5000.

HOSPITALS ENRICHED

Twenty-five hundred dollars is left to each of the following: Mrs. Mary Wiswell, Brookline; Miss Katherine Blumpey, Brookline; Miss Eleanor Mell, Boston; Mrs. Reuben Abbott, Brookline; Mrs. Sarah B. Reid, Brookline; Mrs. Susan MacCoy, Brookline, and Mrs. Beulah C. Putnam of Winchester.

Twenty-five thousand dollars each is bequeathed to the Children's Hospital of Boston, the Boston Tuberculosis Association and the Brookline Anti-Tuberculosis Society; $20,000 to the New England Deaconess Hospital; $10,000 each to the Brookline Friendly Society and the Episcopal City Mission of

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (AP)—Counsel for James J. Hines undertook today a three-hour legal assault on the testimony by which District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey has attempted to prove that the Tammany district leader was the hired man of a $20,000,000 policy racket.

On the assumption that Dewey has proved nothing except, possibly, that Hines was a man who knew everybody—including an assortment of underworld characters—and was a "good guy" who did favors for the asking, the defense planned to move for the dismissal of the charges against him.

Failing in that, Lloyd Paul Stryker and his associates were ready to challenge the prosecution's three weeks of testimony that Hines played political protector—for pay—to Dutch Schultz's policy racket. Whether Hines himself would dispute his accusers, as he already has done once in an explosive moment in court, was still undecided when Dewey, after a rapid-fire finish, concluded his case.

"Positively," was the answer of Joseph Shalleck, Hines' personal attorney, to the question of whether Magistrate Hulon Capshaw and former District Attorney William C. Dodge, accused by witnesses of being Hines' political puppets, would testify.

FEEL

That's Germany's Opinion of America

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 8.—The Nazi Congress gave a one-word definition for America—and other democracies—today.

It was "FEEL!" A chorus of "Feel's" greeted declaration of Hans Frank, Nazi legal head, that the United States paid an annual tribute of billions to racketeers.

Frank produced an array of statistics for 1932, under the German Republic, and for 1937, under Nazism, to prove that criminality has been enormously reduced. Then he added dramatically:

"Never these figures and you have the picture of crime increases in the so-called democracies."

"Our critics say there is not justice in Germany," he cried at the top of his voice.

"We hurt this charge back to our critics. Never before has a people been so secure as Germany under Nazism."

Britons Study Czech Crisis

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP)—The British "inner cabinet" was summoned today to face a new Sudeten German-Czech threat to European peace.

Harassed by a critical breakdown of negotiations between Czechoslovakia and her autonomy-demanding Sudeten German minority, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain hurried back from a vacation in Scotland to meet Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer.

All three expected to remain in London until the conclusion Monday of the annual Nazi party congress in Nurnberg, Germany.

Other cabinet ministers remained near London, although no session of the full cabinet had been called. Chamberlain was reported to be especially concerned about suspicions said to have been voiced abroad that Great Britain was responsible for the breakdown.

Seeks to Spur British Action

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 8 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, who yesterday ordered Sudeten Germans to discontinue their negotiations for self-rule with the Czechoslovak government, today instructed the minority leaders to resume the talks.

The reason for this change, it was said, was the desire of the chancellor and self-styled protector of Sudeten Germans to convince the world he was leaving nothing undone to find a peaceful solution to the Czech-German crisis.

Informed quarters said "with this additional evidence of a conciliatory spirit to the Sudeten Germans' credit" Hitler could "all the more press upon the British to demand maximum concessions from the Czechoslovak administration."

German efforts will now be concentrated upon getting the British to act quickly and decisively, these sources added.

Konrad Henlein, Sudeten German leader, returned to Nurnberg this morning after a hurried overnight journey to Czechoslovakia, which he took at Hitler's behest.

An informed source said the Sudeten Fuehrer ordered his followers to remain calm and refrain from intensifying the conflict while his negotiations with Hitler, and Hitler's with Britain, are in progress.

There was no immediate meeting of Hitler and Henlein after the latter's return, for the German Fuehrer spent all morning in the 10th annual congress of the Nazi party and left after lunch to attend a Nazi athletic meet.

Germany's patience with both the British and the Czechoslovaks in negotiations for German minority rights in Czechoslovakia is near its end, a general well aware of events said today.

"We never will make war on the Czechs," the general told this writer at the Nazi party convention here, "but if the lives of our German brethren are not safe the day may come when we shall consider that they (the Czechs) started a war with us."

"In such case, of course, we shall remember that attack is the best method of defense."

French Planes Guard Maginot

SARREGUEMINES, on the French-German Frontier, Sept. 8 (AP)—France's air and land armies in the Maginot zone watched movements of German troops across the frontier today and awaited developments in Czechoslovakia.

Citizens of Metz awoke to see a large army observation balloon floating from a cable high above the city.

French observation and pursuit planes roared over valleys of the Maginot line of fortifications long before the morning fog had lifted.

During the night troops in the fortresses were strengthened by thousands of trained reserves. Constant watch was kept in the garisons and at entrances to the underground fortifications.

The cream of the French continental reserve forces, an estimated 350,000 men in all, waited for orders in the Maginot zone.

At many points along the Rhine river French and German troops were close enough to talk.

Race Charges Branded 'Plot'

Sweeping condemnation of horse racing in New Hampshire today was branded as a political plot to bring about the defeat of Governor Francis P. Murphy in next Tuesday's primary.

The Governor's defender was Lou Smith, president of Rockingham Park and pioneer of New England racing, who charged distortion in a series of complaints lodged against racing by the National Council of Congregational and Christian Churches.

Smith flatly denied that the management of Rockingham track had used money and jobs to influence New Hampshire public officials, as charged in a report of Harold O. Hatcher of New York.

investigator for the Church Council.

"I have tried to keep my race track entirely divorced from politics," Smith declared. "I believe these sudden charges were framed in an attempt to injure Governor Murphy's chances of winning the Republican nomination next Tuesday."

"The charge that I spent money to buy political advantage is false. Most of the others are a huge joke."

The church report delivered a stinging rebuke to horse racing and those backing it in New Hampshire. Among more startling charges was the claim that 32 State Representatives, clerks of both the Senate and the House, the brother of Governor Murphy and the chairman of the Salem board of selectmen all held jobs at Rockingham this summer.

The report also stated the New Hampshire Racing Commission "is more active in defending the track operators than in protecting the public." Other charges were: That the track banked its funds in a Nashua bank in which Governor Murphy is vice-president. That track owners has netted a cash profit of $1,000,000 in the five years on an investment of $100,000.

That neither confirmation nor denial can be obtained that the track spends between $2000 and $3000 to help elect key persons to political posts.

DENIES "HUSH"

That Joseph Shalleck, associate of James J. Hines, Tammany chieftain now on trial in New York for protecting the number pool rackets, was the first president and counsel at Rockingham track.

That the amount embezzled by a Nashua bank executive and never disclosed was lost at Rockingham. The amount was set at $100,000.

State Bank Commissioner Clyde Davis corroborated the $100,000 figure in the report but denied that the case was quickly hushed after the offender was given a nine to 12-year sentence.

Smith readily admitted that many members of the Legislature were working at the track but stated they were only receiving a day's pay for a day's work and would be dismissed if their work was unsatisfactory.

Mi-Mi-Mi Wins Over Hi-Di-Ho

GLADYS MOORE
High C's Sailing

She gave up hi-di-ho for mi-mi.

So, off to Naples today, a four-year scholarship at the Italian Royal Conservatory of Music tucked in her pocket, sailed Gladys Moore, 22, of Winchester road, Back Bay, less than a year after she abandoned hot, swiny songs in a night club for opera.

Miss Moore was one of 245 passengers who embarked on the Vulcania for the Azores and Mediterranean ports.

The budding diva has been a waitress in an exclusive Park street club and her vocal training was confined to less than a year with the Back Bay Community chorus.

Leo J. Murray of Jamaica Plain, chorus member, "discovered" Miss Moore at an informal party.

Said Mme. Emilia Ippolita, choral director: "Miss Moore has the most extraordinary voice I have heard in 20 years."

She is a lyric coloratura soprano, with voice range of 2½ octaves, from B-flat to F above high C.

Others on the Vulcania included Mrs. A. B. Snow, novelist, of Worcester, going to Portugal to seek material for a new book.

HUNT MOUNTAIN HIKER

RANGELEY LAKES, Me., Sept. 8 (AP)—Game Warden Sidney C. Harden headed a posse which continued search today for Charles Fairbrother, Providence, R. I., former Greendale CCC camp enrollee, who disappeared Tuesday after leaving for a hike up Saddleback mountain.

Lyman Begins 'Revels' Probe

Conditions reflecting "a grave situation" at Dedham jail and Norfolk County farm were cited by Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman today as he began a thorough probe of both institutions.

"My investigation of reported scandals at the farm," the commissioner said, "will undoubtedly include a survey of alleged irregularities at the jail."

Lyman said of his orders for the transfer of all women confined in the Dedham jail:

"The significance is self-apparent."

He declined to amplify the remark.

The commissioner disclosed that in his probe he would question all Norfolk farm officials concerning reports of free distribution of farm produce to their friends and relatives.

John Murphy and Walter H. Probert, two department of correction investigators, are assisting in the penal probe.

"Since the end of spring," Commissioner Lyman declared, "sporadic rumors of irregularities at the jail and county farm have come to my attention."

"None of these could be confirmed at the time, but recently I have received written reports of a grave situation existing in both institutions which demanded official investigation."

"At first sight these allegations sufficiently impressed me with the need of a thorough airing of the charges against guards and their superiors."

Franco Shifts Zone of Battle

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), Sept. 8 (AP)—Spanish insurgents reported today they had made slight advances north of Viver in a shift of warfare in eastern Spain from the Ebro river to the Castellon front.

The new fighting along the high-way from Teruel to Valencia, 34 miles southeast of Viver centered in the Caballeros mountains where the insurgents have been attacking for several days.

Government pressure on Gandesa, objective of the Ebro offensive, was reduced by fires in pine and olive groves on mountain slopes. Gandesa is about 85 miles northeast of Viver.

Mrs. Russell Raps Governor

Reappointment by Governor Hurley to her unpaid post on the board of the Metropolitan State Hospital today was refused by Mrs. Richard M. Russell after confirmation by the Executive Council.

Mrs. Russell, wife of one of Governor Hurley's opponents for the Democratic nomination for Governor, recently was ousted from the position, one she had held for five years, over an oath-taking technicality.

In declining the reappointment, Mrs. Russell said: "It seems to me that the negligence in failing to notify me or my colleagues and others in the state service of the necessity of taking a qualifying oath before serving the public in an unpaid position has gone far enough and need not be drawn out any longer."

"Consequently, I have decided not to accept the Governor's offer of reappointment, since it seems to me that it is an evidence of insincerity."

Paul C. Ryan, secretary to the Governor, stated the condition of appointment was clearly printed on the commission received by the appointee.

At the same time, Governor Hurley stated he would arrange to give a public hearing to Dr. Paul J. Jakmauh before the Executive Council and have present medical authorities who have opposed him on the grounds he is not qualified for the health commissionership.

Stella Vanegou, Central street, Saugus.

Cassie Austin, Burns street, Lynn.

Archie Bickford, Clarence street, Everett, driver of the truck with which the bus collided.

Edward McDonald, the bus driver.

The three women and Bickford were taken to Lynn Hospital, where it was found they had suffered probable internal injuries. McDonald, not seriously hurt, received first aid. Other passengers aboard the bus were cut and bruised. They received treatment in nearby doctors' offices.

4 Hurt, 27 Cut In Lynn Bus Crash

Three women were seriously injured today and 27 other passengers were cut, bruised or shaken up in a collision between a Swampscott-bound Massachusetts Street Railway Company bus and a truck on Western avenue near Burns street, West Lynn.

The driver of the truck was also hurt.

The bus skidded after colliding with the truck, and smashed into a telegraph pole, which was snapped off like a match stick. The whole front end of the bus was demolished.

Cassie Austin, one of the victims taken to the hospital, had just boarded the bus and had ridden not more than 25 yards when the crash occurred.

TRUCK SMASHED

The crash came as Edward McDonald, driver of the bus, swung around the corner into Western avenue from Burns street. The bus was filled, but not crowded.

The sound of the smashup was heard for a block and was followed by the screams of those hurt as the bus skidded into the telegraph pole.

The truck with which the bus collided was smashed up, but not as badly damaged as the bus.

Ask Delay in Graves Trial

State and defense both moved today towards a postponement, past Primary Day, of the trial of Frederick H. Graves.

"There have been developments since the Curley-Santuosso trial," District Attorney Foley, in charge of Graves' prosecution, declared in court. "There are certain matters and episodes that we are investigating that may open up new angles."

Graves is accused of perjury in connection with his testimony against former Governor James M. Curley and Dr. Joseph Santuosso, who, he said, received $30,000 and $20,000 respectively in connection with the city's settlement of a water-damage suit while Curley was mayor of Boston.

SEEK DEPOSITIONS

Appearing before Judge Frederick W. Fosdick, Attorney Lafayette Chamberlin, representing Graves, and Assistant District Attorney Foley, in charge of the prosecution, both told the court that in their opinion it appears "almost inevitable" that the trial will not take place until after Primary Day, September 20. It is at present scheduled for September 15.

Chamberlin asked for and obtained permission to obtain depositions from two out-of-state witnesses, William J. Montgomery, vice-president of Ernest W. Brown, Inc., of New York, and Ralph L. Polio, manager of the Mayflower Hotel in Washington. Prosecutor Foley said he will file cross-interrogatories. He has seven days in which to do so. The time taken up by this procedure alone, it was pointed out, will take the preliminaries right up to September 15, the present date set for trial.

ISSUES STATEMENT

Ex-Governor Curley himself, now again a candidate for nomination for governor, had issued a statement just prior to today's court hearing, "hoping" that the trial would be postponed.

In court as spectators were Attorney Joseph Scolopetti, a close political associate of Curley, and Attorney Frank L. Simpson, Santuosso's lawyer. They took no part in the proceedings, however.

Prosecutor Foley, in debate on Attorney Chamberlin's request that depositions be taken from Montgomery and Polio, revealed that the state, too, has been interested in Montgomery and has had investigators in New York.

QUIT N. Y. MEN

Montgomery, he said, has made a statement that he or Ernest W. Brown, Inc., received $20,000 in the water damage suit. Graves, Foley pointed out, said at the Curley-Santuosso trial that he acted for Ernest W. Brown, Inc., and that Montgomery knew of his activities.

"We want to ask that gentleman some further questions," Foley said, referring to Montgomery, who, thus far, has never been called as a witness.

2 Children Slain, Mother Stabbed

OLD WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP). — A mother who feared her children might inherit her ill health was said by police Inspector Harold I. King to have stabbed her two children to death, today and plunged a carving knife into her own body four times.

The woman, Mrs. Helen Novinski, 27, wife of the chauffeur for Karl H. Bissell, New York broker, is in a critical condition.

The tragedy occurred in the chauffeur's house on a corner of the 50-acre Long Island estate in Wheatley Hills.

A note made public by Inspector King said in part: "I could not bear to live to see my children suffer as I have suffered."

The Man who Cares says:—CARSTAIRS

A Name of Fine Traditions
since 1788

Carstairs is a blend of several distinguished whiskeys. It is 86.8 proof. The straight whiskeys in this product are four years or more old. 57% straight whiskey and 42% other whiskeys four years or more old. Carstairs Bros. Distilling Co., Inc., New York, N. Y.

An impression of Sam Matthews by James Montgomery Flagg

If you've watched Sam Matthews on the golf course, you've noticed that he never tries to kill the ball. "Easy does it" is Sam's idea.

Whatever Sam does, he does with moderation and self-control. That's why he keeps on making "birdies" and "eagles", both on the golf course and off.

For many decades, the Carstairs family have been serving "men who care" and men who "take care". Men who value fine quality too highly to abuse it. The Carstairs Whiskey of today is a skillful blend of several selected whiskeys, the youngest of which is 4 years old. Blended with that fine craftsmanship traditional with Carstairs since 1788.

Carstairs is a whiskey you may drink with relish and serve with pride on the brightest of red-letter occasions.

"The name 'Sam Matthews' is not intended to refer to any specific individual, but merely to a type, the type of 'man who cares'."

Sounding the keynote of the drive under way, more than 700 executives representing 5200 business firms, manufacturers and industrialists in Greater Boston today held a "pep talk" luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce.

Over 100,000 Pass Cardinal Hayes' Bier

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (INS)—Nuns and brothers representing more than 50 religious organizations in the archdiocese of New York, paid their final respects today to their late leader, Patricia Cardinal Hayes.

In a continuation of the impressive demonstrations of faith, unparalleled in New York's history, the procession of mourners, already exceeding 100,000 was resumed early.

The only interruptions was during the solemn requiem mass attended by the sisters and brothers, celebrated by Auxiliary Bishop Stephen J. Donohue, newly-appointed administrator of the archdiocese over which Cardinal Hayes ruled for 19 years.

Eyes downcast, their lips moving in silent prayer as they fingered rosaries, the sisters and brothers filed silently into St. Patrick's Cathedral without interrupting the endless march of faithful past the catafalque upon which the cardinal's body rests before the main altar.

When the hour for mass arrived the procession ceased, but resumed again as soon as the formal services were concluded.

With approximately 6000 persons from all stations in line passing the bier today, it was expected that 200,000 will have paid their respects to the archbishop who became a prince of the Roman Catholic Church before the doors of St. Patrick's closed tonight.

Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, who will celebrate the solemn pontifical funeral mass for Cardinal Hayes tomorrow, arrived today.

Topsfield Fair Draws Thongs

TOPSFIELD, Sept. 8—Drawn by an exceptionally attractive program, including championship motorcycle races, thousands thronged into town today for the second day of the Essex County Fair.

Many of the visitors were from the real farm country, down to see the oxen pulling contest.

During the day, the 102nd Regiment Band was to play. Tomorrow's Governor's Day and Governor Hurley and many other state dignitaries will attend.

The fair continues through Saturday.

The luncheon was attended by Mayor Tobin, Elliot Wadsworth, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; P. A. O'Connell, president of the Retail Board, and other notables.

E. C. Johnson, chairman of the National Sales Crusade in Boston, announced more than $6,000 "Sales Mean Jobs" buttons have already been distributed.

P. A. O'Connell, speaking after the luncheon, said:

"When the Pilgrims landed in 1620, there was not a single job for a white man in Massachusetts. Since then, approximately, millions of opportunities for employment have been created."

"We are still short about 200,000 and I am ready to believe that the same productive enterprise which made upwards of 2,000,000 jobs can develop another 200,000."

"Recognizing this truth, the retail merchants of Boston and of all Massachusetts are taking unusual steps to encourage the largest practicable amounts of consumer buying."

"Everyone benefits from the dollar spent in a retail store, for it goes directly into the vital blood stream of industry by which all opportunities for service and profitable employment are built."

Mail Carrier Held In Auto Fatality

10 Waitresses Threaten to Quit At Long Island

Complaining that they were being treated as "servants" and "slaves" by their employers, 10 waitresses threatened to quit their jobs at Long Island Hospital today.

The girls claimed head waitresses were enforcing "unreasonable" discipline and restricting their goings and comings during leisure hours.

Dr. Charles L. Clay, medical director of the Long Island Hospital, persuaded the girls to wait and tell their story later to Institutions Commissioner Hugh J. Campbell.

He was expected to visit Long Island today or tomorrow on a tour of inspection.

Dr. Clay said: "I think everything will be straightened out."

"The girls who are dissatisfied are young and away from their own homes for the first time."

"They don't realize that they must be subjected to some discipline in their own interest and for their own protection."

"They can't be allowed to go and come entirely as they please in a big institution of this sort."

"The whole situation will be investigated by Commissioner Campbell."

Grill 'Model Youth' As Slain Girl Is Buried

Interrogated by detectives to find out who had been in the neighborhood of the girl's home.

She said that Barbara's funeral service was being conducted at 11 o'clock today in the neighborhood of the girl's home.

The corpse of Barbara's mother, Mrs. Alice C. Driscoll, 27, was buried in the city's white cemetery.

Six of Barbara's former girl classmates at St. Patrick's School had been in the funeral procession as the body was carried to the cemetery and each carried a single white rose upon the casket.

More than 100 children, including all the pupils of St. Patrick's School attended services in Immaculate Conception Church.

Every seat was filled and many mourners were standing.

Sister Mary Bernard was celebrated by Rev. John J. Bellaschio at the ceremony after Mrs. Driscoll had collapsed and had been assisted from the scene by her husband and other relatives.

Neighbors and schoolmates gathered in the church to pay tribute to the girl.

There was a view of the crime and its unknown perpetrator.

What was said presaged relentless vengeance on the person or persons who beat little Barbara to death and left her crushed and broken body at a railroad shed, at the foot of a hill at her home.

It was a conviction today, they said, that the slayer was known to Barbara Driscoll and known and treated possibly as a friend.

She seemed, they said, to have been a girl who was ever while the funeral was taking place — was described as such a person.

CHICK 'SEX OFFENDER'

At the same time, however, the police were looking for a "sex offender" who had been in the neighborhood of the girl's home.

Weigh Minimum Outer-Wear Wage Scale

After being informed that the National Warehouse and Home Appliance Industries Association and the International Union of Marine, Electrical, and Shipbuilding Workers of America, the Massachusetts Minimum Wage Commission held a hearing on the minimum wage for the outer-wear industry.

James T. Moriarty, state commissioner of labor and industry, presided over the hearing, which was held in the state house.

Samuel P. Kaplan, representing the New England Knitting Association, presented evidence that the minimum wage for the outer-wear industry should be set at 15 cents an hour.

It was pointed out that the outer-wear industry is one of the most important in the state, and that it employs a large number of women.

A minimum wage of 15 cents an hour would mean an increase of 50 per cent for the women workers in the industry.

Brockton Hotel Fire Routs 37

BROCKTON, Sept. 8.—While spectators watched in horror, a terrified young woman teetered from the edge of a high roof, about to leap to certain death, as flames swept through the four-story Palace Hotel on Main street today, trapping 36 guests in their rooms.

The girl Charlotte Lee, 19, descended from her death leap, was assisted to safety down a ladder, as were six others trapped in smoke-filled rooms on the fourth floor. Many of them required medical treatment.

Firemen battling through smoke and flames led 30 other guests to safety down fire escapes.

Two police officers were over come. They were taken to Brockton Hospital.

The fire apparently started in a closed room under lease to the Brockton Republican Club.

Sidney Wilford, night clerk, smelled smoke and traced it to the club's quarters. As he opened the door a sheet of flame leaped out.

He called the fire department and raced along the halls, arousing the 36 sleeping guests, but the flames spread so rapidly that stairways were cut off, forcing the guests to flee to upper stories and the roof.

Woman, 76, Burned In Jamaica Plain Fire

Critically burned, a 76-year-old Jamaica Plain woman was carried over ladders to safety early today when flames swept her room on Walden street.

The victim, Mrs. Marie Grabert, a widow, was found unconscious in a third floor bedroom, with flames burning fiercely about her, by Fireman Thomas P. Neenan.

At City Hospital, doctors head little hope for the woman's recovery. Maguire, also burned, was held at the same hospital for treatment.

Henry Grabert, son of the injured woman, and his wife, Anna, and their five children, were assisted to the street.

Winchester Girl Sought By G-Men

Search for 17-year-old Shirley Smith of Winchester, missing since August 29, was redoubled today with U. S. Department of Justice agents called in on the case and Canadian and Mexican authorities co-operating.

Fear for the girl's safety was expressed. A graduate of Winchester High school and daughter of C. Harold Smith, automobile dealer, she vanished after leaving Leonard playground in Winchester, presumably to go to her room. She was employed at the playground as a janitor.

Belief that her disappearance was premeditated, however, followed discovery she had cashed $40 from her bank account before she left.

Girl friends told police and G-men that Miss Smith talked to them about Texas, Mexico and Canada. Border guards at both the Mexican and Canadian lines were notified and requested to look out for her. Texas authorities likewise have been asked to search for her.

Her locked diary was opened by Chief of Police William Rogers of Winchester, but afforded no clue.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys are a "55 lb. of tissue" and are "the most important organs in your body." They are the "filters" of your blood, and if they become clogged, they will poison your blood and your body. This is the cause of many diseases, including high blood pressure, diabetes, and kidney stones. The only way to keep your kidneys healthy is to flush them out with a special treatment. This treatment is called "Kidney Flushing" and it is the only way to get rid of the acids and other poisonous waste that build up in your kidneys. It is a simple, safe, and effective treatment that can be done at home. For more information, write to: Dr. J. H. Smith, 1234 Main Street, Boston, Mass.

130,000 School Children Trek Back to Classes

More than 130,000 children, ranging from kindergarten to high school age, went back to school this morning in Boston.

The anticipated enrollment was approximately 1000 less than last year, although 673 children in the Old Harbor Village housing project brought a jump in South Boston attendance.

In the latter district, Superintendent Arthur L. Gould ordered additional rooms opened in the John A. Andrew and John Hoyle O'Reilly schools to care for youngsters living in the federal project.

Meanwhile, it was announced that $16,910,749 had been appropriated to care for Boston's school needs in 1938. Although no new buildings were ready for today's opening, additions were opened at the Joyce Kilmer school in West Roxbury and the Patrick Gavin school, South Boston.

Other communities in which school opened today were Medford, Lynn, Somerville, and Weymouth. Schools in Brookline, Cambridge, and Quincy opened Monday.

Garment Pay Boost Looms

Picket lines were disbanded on Kneeland street today as an armistice between employers and the International Ladies Garment Workers Union was proclaimed by Vice-President Philip Kramer.

In announcing cessation of hostilities Kramer asserted arrangements had been made for union delegates and factory owners to meet later and ratify the tentative agreement reached this morning.

The union spokesman said that his three shops picketed for the past 13 days would increase the wages of their employees $1000 weekly and reduce working time by 12 hours in a five-day week.

Parents Defy Court Threats in School Shift

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 8 (AP).—Parents of 33 children here today defied threats of court prosecution for refusing to transfer the children from the abandoned Worthington street school to classes in other sections of the city.

The parental protest was voiced by Mrs. Anna Valley, who informed School Attendance Officer John A. Parker that the group she represented would avoid themselves of the 7-day monthly leave of absence permitted, under the law for parents, until the transfer order was rescinded.

As the children carried protest placards, picketed the Worthington street building, Dr. A. Fredman, man, school committee member, announced the school would remain closed for lack of funds.

He said the committee would meet tomorrow night to discuss the controversy and invited disgruntled parents to attend.

Meanwhile, in the new school building, Dudley, eight youngsters were in possession of their classrooms and steps at the regular class hour.

SHOWING THE WAY

The Editor Says:—The motion picture industry thinks the time has come to PROVE ITS CONFIDENCE in America.

It will spend a million dollars in the next few months GETTING THE CONFIDENCE OF America.

The resultant advertising campaign will undoubtedly cause an increasing number of people to patronize the movies, which is of course one of its purposes.

So it is a move which will be beneficial to the motion picture industry, giving security to the great number of people it now employs and enabling it to EXPAND EMPLOYMENT.

But it will also give powerful impetus to recovery programs in all industries, which is a greater purpose.

Unquestionably, the motion picture industry is capable of TAKING THE LEAD in the inevitable march of American industries back to normal and prosperous conditions.

Unquestionably, it is capable of serving and promoting the welfare of the nation and of mankind.

The movies have a ready enormously broadened and improved the MENTAL WORLD in which every man must live.

They have opened back the horizons of the mind, bringing within easy limits of understanding and appreciation all the events of history and all the amazing works of scientists and artists and thinkers as well as all the fascinating and fantastic romances and intrigues and realities which contribute to the instruction and entertainment of all men.

No individual can be a frequent patron of the movies and remain stunted in his mental growth.

The movies transport him in a magic instant of time to remote parts of the world he has never seen and will never see, and give him an intimate knowledge of regions and scenes, people and circumstances of life.

The movies transport him BACK to almost every important, interesting and history-making event or thing that has ever happened or been done.

The movies can give him a GLIMPSE INTO THE FUTURE, to whatever extent the uncertain mysteries of TIME TO COME can be penetrated and predicted by the ever searching inquiries of science, invention and philosophy.

These are tremendous services to mankind, tremendous attributes of enlightenment and progress, tremendous contributions toward the enjoyment of living.

Certainly the motion picture industry has much to sell and MUCH MORE TO GIVE.

It is a wonderful thing that it has sufficient faith in itself and its splendid product, and sufficient FAITH IN AMERICA, to devote all its vast enterprise and resources to improving and securing the country's PROGRESS TOWARD RECOVERY AND PROSPERITY.

PROGRESS

A record of 20 years of successful management is being marked this week by Filene's Automobile Bargain Basement.

In 1918 the Filene firm organized a revolutionary department with a policy which opened a bargain basement. In the space of 20 years the concern has added goods to the value of $250,000,000 to its merchandise.

It is not the volume of business that makes the department noteworthy, but it is the foresight of the management which led to the real success of the plan.

All New England joins in wishing the executives of the concern many more years of successful bargain selling.

Gompers' Warning To Labor Recalled

By EDWIN C. HILL

THE LATE Sam Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor for many years and more than any other man the builder of the American Labor movement in America, used to drive home the necessity on all occasions and always opportunistically.

It was "Don't get mixed up with the government, any more than you have to its good citizens and vote for the friends of Labor, but don't let the government get at your back."

In a sort of rambling way, I was reminded of this by the news story of the $10,000 worth of PWA suits by armed robbers in Brooklyn the other day.

These secret service tales, in which the government operators always got their man-robber or counterfeiter, made the eagle on the operator's badge a fearsome and awe-inspiring creature. But what about the dramatic unities when they grab somebody who lifted a truckload of PWA pants?

IT MIGHT NOT SEEM quite clear as to where Sam Gompers got his entrance cue for this piece. To me it is as plain as a pie. The pudgy, paunchy and bald little Labor Napoleon, with a puffy nose, thick-lensed spectacles and steely, blue-gray eyes, expounded long and eloquently the danger which Labor would encounter with reliance on government rather than on its own effective organization.

I remember, in my early days

'Bugs' Baer Says:

IN POINT of order, I am sorry to hear that the government is not taking any more of the suits of the PWA suits.

THESE HAVE BEEN a long time in coming. I am sorry to hear that the government is not taking any more of the suits of the PWA suits.

HAPPY TO hear that the government is not taking any more of the suits of the PWA suits.

FEDERAL MEN PROBING A MAIL ROBBERY

as a reporter in New York, covering a small meeting in a dingy little East Side hall in which Sam Gompers was debating informally with a visiting sociologist, an earnest man of the type of Raymond Robins, and possibly it was he. The latter was reproaching the union, not unintelligently, I thought, for having refused to build or accept a social philosophy on which to base the Labor movement, and for having repulsed co-operation with the intelligentsia.

I was jolted quickly out of a misapprehension about the mind and personality of Sam Gompers. Brilliantly and cogently he expounded the origins and history of the individualistic theory of his man society.

"If labor is united and strong, if it is fair and intelligent," he said, "it will get all that is coming to it, without government assistance or the enactment of new laws. Any unionist who believes in the future, instead of its own united bargaining power, will be the measure of labor's existence and failure."

I HEARD Sam Gompers speak many times after that, and he almost invariably affirmed this belief, but now, with his academic background that he reserved for the intelligentsia when he met them and cowed them on their own ground.

The philosopher Bergson extolled the "man who thinks like a man of thought." That was old Sam Gompers to the end, an unpolished but a man of thought.

Articles by Edwin C. Hill will be continued daily in the Boston Evening American.

Uncle Sam Prepares Whole Nation for War

By DAMON RUNTON

Copyright, 1938, by Damon Runtun. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced without permission in writing from the author.

WHILE ALL the other big nations of the world are making a terrific show of their armaments, like a fellow going around flipping back his coat tails so you can see the pistol in his hip pocket, old Uncle Sam is just sitting down, very dignified, to his

The way he is going now it will not be long before these tough guys over in Europe, taking a look at Sam's self-sufficiency realize that he is "the best bet" as the boys say better than any of them.

Old Sam, maddening "Beane brother," in his hotel, is quietly aiding new war boats off the ways, and figuring out 30-ton bombers that can fly barrels of explosives from here to who-lav the chunk, and expanding and mechanizing his army and moving his air bases back from the coast to where the enemy flies would have to have a search war rent to find them.

MR. ROOSEVELT has just released $2,000,000 of a $10,000,000 appropriation that is to be expended in familiarizing selected manufacturers with the problems of munitions making.

The education of a manufacturer is the first important feature of Uncle Sam's preparedness because when this country has gone to war in the past its greatest handicap was in the delay in outfitting the fighting men. The $10,000,000 is to be spread over a period of five years in educating the manufacturers in the preliminaries of mass production by building equipment that can be stored against the time it may be needed.

This War Department, which seems to be right on its toes in the preparedness business, wants $300,000,000 to build the army up to 175,000 and to handle that war machine that are being prepared for the immediate targets at the rate of two each working day, and the new tanks, and the new anti-aircraft guns that by 1940 will have been built by Uncle Sam's hand in the munitions.

AS ONE WHO IS ALWAYS yelling for preparedness as the surest way of avoiding war, we naturally take great satisfaction in the way Sam is stepping up.

The Americans are suddenly making public parade of their armed might and they know the customers over there thinking of the threat of war, soon makes no point of making sure and the average American's Americans not conscious of the dark clouds that hang over the rest of the world, except when he sees the headlines in the public press.

The average American only knows that the country is not going to war, which means perhaps it is needed and by the end of 1939 the way old Sam's stepping invasion will be just another name for some far away enemy that, at least, is.

It is going to be a long time of money, all right, but not as much as a few enemy planes working over New York City or San Francisco a few hours would cost, and it will give Americans billions of dollars worth of sense of security.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"BUT I DIDN'T MEAN IT!" you cry, genuinely aghast at some careless act.

Yes, you did! I know it's hard to take but it's true. You did what you did because you meant to do it . . . planned to do it . . . chose to do it.

"Why, how abominably unfair!" you flame. "I never dreamed of doing such a stupid thing . . . It never entered my mind—"

And again the only answer is STOP FOOLING YOURSELF! That act not only entered your mind but it had been living there for months, perhaps years, before you committed it!

THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS AN UNREMEDITATED ACT . . . OR AN ACCIDENTAL ACT . . . OR AN UNINTENTIONAL ACT. EVERYTHING WE DO HAS ROOTS WHICH STRETCH BACK AND BACK, SOMETIMES TO THE BEGINNINGS OF OUR LIVES.

No act is isolated. No act has just one motive behind it. Every act is composed of countless desires and decisions, impressions and reactions.

Actually, no act is trivial or unimportant. Everything you do—or don't do! Everything you say or think—has a definite relationship to every other act in your life. And nothing is ever lost in your life. Nothing is ever forgotten. Everything, little or big, is stored within the mysterious reaches of your spirit and leaves its inevitable mark on your record and your character.

BUT YOU STILL don't see why you made that rude remark to the clever authoress you'd just met . . . and you, with your cherished reputation for diplomacy.

Well, start 30 years ago, when you were a three-year-old tyke with a sister four years older. Such a wonderful sister how you adored and envied her! For, where your hair hung in pale strings, hers was a fluff of copper curls. And where you were paralyzed with shyness in public, she was gay as a chickadee . . . always laughing, chattering, dancing her way into everyone's heart.

So, though you were inseparable, there was a vague hurt and bewilderment in your heart. Was it forgotten?

No, it wasn't. All those 30 years, that old hurt has been festering in your mind, unrecognized—seemingly finished. Yet every now and then lashing out in some odd, "unintentional" act. In that catty remark to the brilliant young writer today; in your queer and hitherto unexplained dislike for henna or rust-colored materials; your irritation at chattering.

MAYBE that hypothetical case fits you, maybe it doesn't. But if you want an interesting adventure, try this. Take any random act you commit . . . and begin to trace its course, find its source. I'll be a job, I warn you . . . and a test of both honesty and courage. But stick to it! See what really made you do the thing you "didn't mean to do."

But if that's how we're made, what's the answer? Seemingly simple. Never let yourself feel that anything "doesn't matter . . . never let your slightest word or gesture pass without a challenge. Watch the beginning of any careless habit . . . check its consequences . . .

THEN HAND YOURSELF THE HILL! YOU'LL BE SURPRISED! AND MAYBE WISER NEXT TIME!

TWO MILLION QUESTIONS ANSWERED YEARLY BY JOSEPH F. CURLEY
Park Square Subway information booth supervisor has remarkable memory

Girl About Town by Marjorie McBride

AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS, you wouldn't think Joseph F. Curley in the information booth at the Park street subway station would still remember the first question he ever answered a harassed commuter. He does. Someone wanted to know if he'd seen a wire-haired terrier, lost in the underground maze.

As you can see, mere knowledge of trains and starting times isn't half of it, and yet Mr. Curley knows all the answers.

When you step in front of him, after all this time, you look to him like a human interrogation point. He figures he answers about 2,000,000 questions every year.

A stock question, among visitors, is the nearest restaurant specializing in Boston baked beans. Also they want to know why the Common is the Common . . . location of shows . . . whereabouts of the Old Howard.

More conventional questions concern the departure of the next car for Chestnut Hill . . . how to get over to the next track . . . where to get off for Harvard.

Dogs take up a lot of his time. He usually pilots lost ones into his booth, and has entertained everything from an Alaskan husky to a Mexican hairless.

THERE WILL BE only one sister-act among the debutantes this fall. Miss Adelaide and Miss Katherine Weld, daughters of the Philip B. Welds of Beacon street, will be introduced to society at a debut party.

Last year there were four sets of twins on the blue ribbon list, which confused the stag lines considerably.

HERE'S ANOTHER of those tourist stories. Place it in a downtown lounge and you won't be wrong. A sightseer got into an argument with one of the bar patrons. One word led to another.

"Now you've said enough. That means fight where I come from, stranger," exclaimed the visitor.

"Well, why don't you fight," the second man said mildly.

"Cause I ain't where I come from," was the answer.

IT'S JUST a suggestion, of course, but offered free to some enterprising restaurant or tea room. Why not provide a shelf of magazines for those who dine alone and like to thumb through a magazine while waiting for service and between courses?

Many diners-out carry pocket editions of their own and would appreciate finding them supplied for a lonely meal. Current issues, preferred. Not the type frequently found in doctors' and dentists' offices!

New York Cavalcade by Louis Sobol

ALBUM OF MANHATTAN: They have just finished a middle-aged fellow out of the water across the street and now police are working over him until the ambulance arrives . . . Five police cars, in their snow-white helmets are lined up—and the crowd of curious swells . . . Almost a daily occurrence here and as soon as the fellow can speak, they will ask him why he jumped or did he fall in accidentally? . . . Now there is an ice-cream cart on the scene and business is good, because the day is hot—and the man will live after all.

FASCINATING SPIT-FIRE Mme. Lupe Velez taps a shapely foot impatiently against the curbstone at 49th and Broadway, waiting for the surge of traffic to subside. Her eyes shoot sparks of venom at the traffic light overhead . . . Impetuous, turbulent Lupe. Thin-lipped Jimmy Walker and his pretty lady, Betty Compton, dine at the Stork Club—and hold court as familiars of Broadway and Park avenue stop to converse.

AT THE RAINBOW ROOM, Vincent Astor and Raymond T. Moley listen politely enough as Elmer Leterman pours out his wistful descriptions of Hawaii when the moon is high and Astor counters with a tale of two of South Sea ports viewed from his Nourmahal.

At the Ambassador Gardens, the Warren Hershings and Pa-in-law Jules Hische are a handsome threesome, but alone, in one of the cheaper restaurants on West 49th street, with a platter of eggs and a cup of coffee in front of her, is a morose diner—the bubble-Pavlova, Sally Rand.

The Bacchus buffoonery of James Barton at the Casa Manana . . . And Al Trahan, pianistic Pagliacci—or as he once referred to himself—Paderoughski of the music halls . . . The energy of the fellow is terrifying . . . Once I saw him twist a giant spike into a bracelet.

Once I read that he had won a trophy for trap shooting—and at Lakeside, in Hollywood, they told me that he had equalled the record of Jimmy Thompson and John Montague in reaching the green of the 575-yard fourth hole—I think it was the fourth hole—in two.

I HAVE TRIED to wean myself from the enervating Broadway rounds but I cannot—and the week found me listening to Jay C. Flippen at Leon and Eddie's and to Jack White at the 18 Club . . . It found me dining at Gallagher's and at Leone's, at the Tavern and at Lindy's.

At the Savoy-Plaza I watched graceful Mae Murray and Sportsman William Ryan in the current importation—the Lambeth Walk.

At the Havana Matril, the lady of the fluttering hands and frustrated mein, Zasu Pitts, occupied herself in a futile rumba—with ringleader spectators including tennis and his wife of the clematis Helen Vinson.

MR. AND MRS. JIMMY WALKER

CURBING ABUSES

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—Now we know the difference between a "liberal" and a "conservative."

A "liberal" is one who admits that there are abuses in the "free" press. The "conservative," on the other hand, is one who admits that there are abuses in the "free" press, but who doesn't want government to do anything about it. A "liberal" is one who admits that there are abuses in the "free" press, but who doesn't want government to do anything about it. A "conservative" is one who admits that there are abuses in the "free" press, but who doesn't want government to do anything about it.

There's highly important because Roosevelt announces a purpose to keep the Democratic Party "liberal" ever. It has to elect "liberal" Republicans to do it.

If what Mr. Roosevelt defined as a conservative at Denton is all that he objects to, there aren't enough conservatives in this country to dust a flue.

Everybody who is familiar with Mr. Roosevelt's differences with leaders in his own party knows that the issues he presented at Denton are not the causes for disagreement at all—not even remotely.

THE MAIN, if not the single issue, is not the reform of such evils as re-monopolization. It is whether, on the excuse that it is necessary to reach those evils, the Senate, the Congress and the state and local governments shall have to the President a large part of their independence. It is whether to reach those evils, it is necessary to pile up unheard-of burdens of J. E. and taxes—not to increase production but by taxes and spending to attempt to confiscate and redistribute existing property. It is whether by these and other methods we shall be pushed further and further toward a collectivist society ruled more and more by a single leader.

The goals, on both sides, are precisely the same and, on the Denton definition, equally "liberal." They are re-employment, greater production more evenly distributed, better protection of classes which are at an economic disadvantage—farmers, workers, the unemployed. These are the "liberal" objectives.

The only real question is whether to reach them we must change the essence of our form of government and economics and rely on the wisdom of one dominating figure, or whether we can do the same thing by corrective legislation through such popular participation in the affairs of government as we have always called democracy. That's the only issue.

IF ONLY that issue could be made clear enough, quickly enough and to enough people, Mr. Roosevelt's so-called liberalism could not live because collectivist government under personalized direction is not "liberal" at all. It is the exact reverse of "liberal" and all you have to do to prove that is to look at Germany, Italy and Russia—personally conducted collectivism in the extreme.

Can the experiments of the move toward collectivism and one-man rule continue the country that they can and will eliminate those abuses without moving in the same direction? The future trend of business and government depends on that alone.

Britain Curtis Cup Favorite

MANCHESTER, Sept. 8.—Conceded the fact that they have one of the best players in the world, the Curtis Cup is a trophy of the power of the British women's team.

The women's team, playing since 1913, has won the trophy seven times. The two most recent winners, who were saved from the danger of being defeated for the first time in 1937, were the British women's team.

Against Martin

George Martin, Gentle Giant and Louis "Cocoa Kid" Hartman, New Haven, called it a great day for their respective training camps today and both were pronounced to be ready for their 15 round battle for the New England welterweight championship, feature of the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Martin, just slightly over 140 pounds, has a strong, stocky build, in the gym breezing through long workouts and hitting sparring partners to all corners of the ring. Summer reports come from New Haven where the Cocoa Kid has been working. He is said to be in the best of health.

The Cocoa Kid is said to be working like a bull in the ring for what seems as the finest welterweight

Open Season for Dinners Is On || B. C. Has Bright Football Outlook

By JACK CONWAY

NOW THAT the open season for dinners is on I believe that sports writers should engage in special exercises to keep their weight down and also to strengthen their right arms.

Mr. Boston

I find that some of these dinner schedules are as difficult as the football programs arranged for the smaller colleges which are anxious to get money for their athletic treasuries at the expense of the limbs and general health of their carefree athletes.

The sports writers received a little workout for the coming season last night when they attended dinners for Joe Cronin, Jim Maloney and for the rulers of the football destinies at Boston College.

I used to advocate a dinner to end all dinners, but I have given up that idea. There was a lull of a week in the dinner programs last spring, and I found myself going home regularly like other citizens, and I didn't like that either.

After all, dinners are an excellent excuse to act the part of the man about town and meet a great many people who like to frequent places where there is excitement.

The Joe Cronin dinner as well as Joe Cronin Day at Fenway Park were glorious successes.

Even a Gloucester or a Scituate fisherman probably would not have ventured to sea in the kind of weather in which the Sox and Yankees played. Fishermen usually display good judgment, and prefer a seat beside a roaring fire and a friendly glass of rum when the sea is rough and it is raining.

Ball players, however, never refuse to play when there are 15,000 cash customers laughing at the rain and demanding action. This is a tribute to our diamond heroes.

I thought the large turnout of fans for Joe Cronin Day under the adverse weather conditions was one of the finest tributes ever accorded to a ball player. The fans sat in the pelting rain to watch the Sox win and to pay fitting tribute to Cronin.

Jimmy Foxx should do all of his batting in the rain. Two home runs and a double which drove in eight runs, was a good day's work even for double X who has been enjoying the greatest year in his colorful history.

I liked the spirit the Sox displayed at the Foxx home runs. Every player on the club was as pleased with Jimmy's lusty wallops as if they had got the circuit smashes themselves.

Joe DiMaggio also stepped into his home-run role.

Pitchers Would Have Won for Sox

ON MY WAY through the Red Sox offices, I stopped to chat with Hughie Duffy.

"The Sox have a better ball club than the Yankees other than the pitching staffs," said Duffy. "If Joe Cronin had two top flingers whom he could rely upon, the Sox would now be coasting to the pennant."

"No club in baseball has as much power as the Sox. You saw what the Sox did against the Yanks in their opening game."

"The 13,000 crowd in a rain storm was a swell tribute to Joe Cronin who I consider the best manager in baseball, and one of the finest characters ever to play major league baseball."

I am glad that so many other people hold a similar opinion as Duffy in regard to Cronin's managerial ability. It is as a manager and as a ball player that Joe earns his living, and it has been pleasing to his many friends to see the crowd jump aboard the Sox leader's band wagon this year.

Cronin personally got more fun out of beating the Yanks than did anybody at Fenway Park. Joe felt his club put on a splendid show at his party.

Boston College Football Outlook

THE BOSTON College football gathering was a get-together affair between the press and the athletic authorities at the Heights. Boston College has excellent football material, and with any kind of a break Gil Dobie should place a powerful lineup in the field.

Dobie did well during his first year at Boston College. Last season the Eagles did not show to such good advantage. It is claimed that the squad was too confident, and did not do as well as it should have done under fire.

Dobie has excellent material for the coming campaign, and is of the opinion his outfit will show to good advantage.

Boston football followers are rooting for Dobie to come through with a winning combination.

Boston College, Harvard, Boston University, Northeastern and Tufts are striving to improve their football pictures and if they do so they will not lack for support from the public.

Jim Maloney as Business Man

JIM MALONEY was host to his Greater Boston friends at his new restaurant on Otis and Arch streets. Jim acts the part of the finished business man, and I believe he will make a success of his new venture.

I always thought Maloney made a mistake in leaving Boston for Miami and then the Northwest. This is Jim's town, and he will do better in business here than he will any place else.

As a boxer, Maloney was one of the greatest drawing cards to ever represent Boston. Shamus has the ability to make and keep friends, and this will prove an asset to him in the restaurant business.

Anyhow there are not any dinners I shall have to attend tonight, and so I shall rest up for the fall drive on oyster cocktails and sirloin steaks. Not to mention an occasional glass of champagne.

Cronin to Stay

Yawkey Pledges Loyalty to Frisco Joe

How About Honoring Mr. Foxx?

By WALTER KILEY

Were every day to be a "Joe Cronin Day," our Red Sox would rest content.

It was an afternoon long to be remembered by the Frisco Kid. He was showered with beautiful and costly gifts and a superb turnout sat throughout drilling him to pay him tribute.

Jimmy Foxx

day he's endured in his brilliant pitching career.

While one and all of the Red Stockings had royal good fun at the New Yorkers' expense, there was one who played such a conspicuous part in adding the fancy touches to Marse Joe's honoring than Jimmy Foxx.

He hit two mighty homers, his 41st and 42nd, off the usually invincible Ruffing, added a fence busting double off Paul McAndrews for good measure, batted in eight large runs, and provided the winning margin of the 11 to 4 victory.

And all in the period of five innings the game lasted.

FOXX GREAT

Not just because Cronin was forced to share honors with Double-X, but because the latter richly deserves real tribute.

Why not a Jimmy Foxx Day?

As Moe Berg who is never at a loss for the right thing to say at the right time, puts it:

"Foxx is the most underrated ball player in the game. There's no greater."

Jimmy ran his pace-setting mark up to 150 for the season, far outdistanced Joe DiMaggio, his nearest pursuer, and now rests only 19 runs-batted-in short of his best mark of 169 made in 1932 with the Athletics.

Further, with three out of four, he jumped his batting average to .344 and is in fine position to regain the batting leadership.

Perhaps the real regard of the Sox for Foxx inspired efforts was summed up by Manager Joe's remarks during the presentation ceremonies preceding the Yankee opener.

To Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty's remark that "you're an outstanding figure in Boston, a real gentleman, an all around good fellow, a splendid and loyal player and manager and we hope you lead the league in batting," Cronin answered:

"Never mind me, I'm pulling for Jimmy Foxx to lead the league. He's the fellow who'll do it, too."

Today's another day and Bill Harris langles up with "Lefty Gomez."

Dinner For Sox Pilot A Success

Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox, has put to rest Cronin's future in the Boston baseball picture.

As one of a large and impressive array of speakers holding forth at the Cronin Day dinner tendered Manager Joe at the Hotel Lenox, Owner Yawkey told the overflow gathering that "Cronin will be connected with the club as long as I am myself."

"Joe Cronin typifies the spirit which we want on our Red Sox club," the millionaire sportsman stated. And as the many guests rent the roof with wild acclaim he insisted that "Cronin is now your manager. I feel that he'll yet lead the Red Sox to the World Series. But in any event he'll be with the club as long as I am myself."

However, Owner Yawkey did not mention whether or not Manager Joe would continue on as manager after his five year contract has expired next year or would occupy some other important role in the organization.

Be that as it may, Yawkey's most sincere contribution to the evening's entertainment did put to rest all the rumors concerning Mickey Cochrane's arrival as successor to the present popular and idolized director of the club's affairs.

The dinner, tendered by a group of local sportsmen, was one of the finest in Boston's history, with Attorney-General Paul A. Dever's toastmastering turning it into a brilliant affair.

STEWART UNDER KNIFE

After taking two in a row from the Bees, the Giants have come to the conclusion that they are still very much in the race for the N. L. pennant. But, they haven't been able to convert Bill Terry, who quit on them two weeks ago, to their way of thinking.

Warren King, the flyweight ball carrier from Dartmouth, will play with the All-Stars against the Shamrocks next week. Then, he'll pay a short visit to his pal "Whitey" Fuller, the demon publicity man of the Big Green. . . The Brooklyn Dodgers need but 15,000 tonight at Ebbets Field to have played to 200,000 in seven night games. . . Harry Huxbaum, who starred for Penn. last season, is a neuritis victim and did not report with the Red and Blue varsity at Hershey, Pa. . . Ray O'Brien, the New York amateur, is the only "simon pure" that makes the winter circuit with the golf pros. . . How about a city series between the Red Sox and Bees? It would be a fine attraction. . . Slamming Sam Sneed has never seen a professional baseball game. . . Bill Stewart, the umpire and manager of the Chicago Blackhaws, winners of the Stanley Cup, will return home on Monday to undergo an appendicitis operation. He wanted to finish out the baseball season but Ford Frick ordered him to quit. Incidentally, there's a new product on the market, the Bill Stewart hard lo hockey shoe. Not to mention the Bill Stewart hockey stick, which is made in Erie, Pa. . . Frank Janusz, the well known junior golfer drove over to New York to see his brother John play for the All-Stars last night. . . Tony Di Natale, the ex-B. C. captain is a great booster for Peddie School, where the All-Stars trained. "They fattened up for the kill" commented Tony. . . Only the first and second clubs in each division will qualify for the National hockey league playoffs this season. . . Frank Souchak, who played end for Pitt last year, and started on the flank for the All-Stars against the New York Giants, is a very good golfer. He wants to be a pro public swinger. . . Elbie Fletcher came up with one of his best "fancy Dams" in the third inning yesterday. Stripp's throw was inside the runner but Elbie gave it the old backhand and saved Joe from being charged with an error. . . BILL GRIMES.

Giants Top All-Stars

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP)—Ward Cuff booted two 42-yard field goals and thus kicked the New York Giants of the National Football League into a 6-0 victory over the Eastern College All-Stars in the third annual charity game before a crowd of 40,382 at the Polo Grounds last night.

Cuff, who used to toss the javelin for Marquette University, proved equally proficient and much more accurate at kicking a football. His two successful placements, both made from slight angles, were almost the only high spots in a game that lacked excitement although it produced plenty of the "old college try" on the part of the All-Stars.

The All-Stars couldn't do much about Cuff's kicking, but they threw up a defense that took the ball on downs from the professional on the college's six-yard line in the second quarter, and that broke up another threat as Alex Wojciechowski, formerly of Fordham, intercepted one of Ed Dunsowski's forward passes in his own end and brought it out four yards.

Grid Woe at Revere

Outlook Also Dark at Classical

Revere high joined the schoolboy football parade yesterday but after an hour's workout, rain chased the squad of 60 off the gridiron and the boys had to mark time until today.

The future status of the Revere boys isn't any too bright. Of the 60 candidates, only six are lettermen. And then, Coach Bob O'Keefe will be working with one of the lightest squads in Greater Boston.

The heaviest back Al Pagliarullo who saw plenty of service last year, tips the scales at only 170 pounds. Walter McGuigan, regular full-back last fall, isn't very far behind.

And the forward wall will also be one of lightest weights on the gridiron this fall. Returning linemen are Barton Moradian, end, Vincent Caramella, guard, brother Peter Caramella and John Pires will give each other a merry battle for the pivot spot.

Their first opponent will be Melrose high a week from Saturday at the latter's grounds.

Out the North Shore way these days, Bill Joyce is having his quota of headaches trying to mould a championship eleven with only three lettermen and not much in the line of any real outstanding material to work with. And the odd part of it is two are ends and the other a center.

Captain Henry Pazik and Bob Casey are the wingmen and Joe P. is the pivot man.

Coach Joyce's Lynn Classical gridder will inaugurate the New Lynn Stadium with its first night football game a week from Friday night against Peabody High.

Faculty Manager Bill Benedick of Melrose High is still sounding the SOS signal. He is seeking a suitable opponent for last year's state champs for Saturday, October 1.

Hope Street High of Providence was originally scheduled for that date, but due to a new ruling at the out-of-state school, they will be unable to make the trip.

Any school with an open date for October 1, write to Benedick at the high school.

Mrs. Moody Plans to Play in '39

Net Queen To Lecture This Fall

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (INS).—An infectious smile lighting her famed "poker face," Mrs. Helen Wills Moody today put the quietest enigma she is through with competitive amateur tennis, and simultaneously forewore possibility of her entrance into professional ranks.

"I'll probably play next year," she said. "I know I will if I can."

But, with reference to her decision not to participate in this year's national singles competition at Forest Hills, she added:

"It's a mistake to push yourself to do a sport. You should never play unless you feel like it."

Recurrence of an old back injury, aggravated by the damp weather in New York on her return from Wimbledon where she triumphed over Helen Jacobs, was responsible for Mrs. Moody's decision to shelve her racquet during the 1938 Forest Hills classic.

As for professional tennis, Mrs. Moody emphasizes that it will have no place in her future. Tennis, to her, is recreation only when she feels free to play when and where she pleases.

"Professional tennis," she explained, "handicaps one's freedom—and I'm cross when anything interferes with my freedom."

Until she does feel up to tennis again, Mrs. Moody will not be idle. She will launch on the career of a lecturer in October, with a six weeks tour across the United States, then plans to return to New York to continue her study of painting.

TALK ON SPORTS

"I'm quite enthusiastic about the idea of a lecture tour," she said. "Of course, I will talk mainly on sports but I intend to make my talks interesting to all types of audiences."

her long tennis career, sports in her experiences she has had during relation to everyday life, and advice on keeping fit will compose her lectures.

"I'm going to enjoy it," Mrs. Moody said cheerfully. "I like to meet people and I want to get the viewpoints of the different sections of the country."

Jai Alai, World's Fastest Game, Makes N. Y. Debut

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (INS).—Jai alai, the world's fastest game, makes its New York debut at the Hippodrome tonight, and if it catches on here, Promoter Mike Jacobs promises to give it a whirl in other big cities.

If the late Tex Rickard were to attend tonight's gala opening he'd probably be moved to remark again:

"I ain't never seen nothing like it," for the guest list reads like a cross-section of the Social Register, diplomatic corps, political and financial world.

The snaky fly in Mike's ointment is the betting angle, because jai alai is more conducive to betting than any other game. However, that is a point Broadway bookies probably will solve for him without much trouble.

Mike has spent $100,000 in converting the Hippodrome into a fronton, which is what they call a spot where jai alai (pronounced hi-lai) is played. He has built a concha (court to you) 150 feet long, 45 feet wide and 40 feet high.

And wait until the Broadway mob gets a lead off those Spanish and Cuban senoritas Mike has imported to wriggle their easianes between games to the accompaniment of a Brazilian orchestra!

HIGH PRICED

Pedro Mir, former world's champion jai alai player, who is matchmaker for the 50 players Jacobs has imported, says the lesser lights get $250 or $300 a month and the stars get $800 a month for playing eight or ten games.

Jacobs will stage games nightly with Saturday and Monday matinees and Mike says it won't be long before the Broadway mob will be talking critically about a rebote, remate, dejada or colada which are terms for a back wall shot, corner shot, slow ball (change of pace), and a killing ace. Should this glorified handball with a basket make the hit with the American public that everybody seems to think it will, Jacobs said he might establish a jai alai league, along the lines of a hockey league, with teams representing leading cities playing a regular schedule.

To Assault Record

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Sept. 8 (INS).—John Cobb and his mechanics are putting the final touches to his 24-cylinder speedster, Ralston, for a Saturday morning assault on the world's land speed record of 345.49 miles per hour. Barring additional rainfall, Cobb, London for broker, said the trial will be made at daybreak.

Auto Race Events

At Brockton Fair

Brookton, Sept. 8.—New faces will add color to the Brockton Fair auto racing events tomorrow and Saturday, September 16 and 17, when a swashbuckling crew of mid-western dirt track ace invade the National Circuit Championship competition at the Brockton oval for the first time.

Speedboat Title Slam, Rossi Goal

DETROIT, Sept. 8 (INS).—Definite assurance he would attempt to make a clean sweep of the world's four speedboat races was given today by Italian sportsman Count Theo Rossi.

Winner of races in Venice and Switzerland to decide the European titles, Count Rossi won the 25-year-old Gold Cup event, Labor Day to claim Count Theo Rossi the world championship in his speedy skiff.

At a banquet in his honor here, the fearless Italian sportsman said he would compete in the President's Cup regatta on the Potomac river, Sept. 23, 24, 25.

The genial Count will go to Chicago today, but returns here tomorrow to conduct his trial runs on the Detroit river.

Second place winners in the Gold Cup, Pan Arena and Dan Foster, Oakland, Calif., youngsters, said they would enter the President's Cup if Harold Ingalls' Miss Canada, and Jack Rutherford's Jung enter.

They also said they would return in 1939 to win the Gold Cup from the Italian nobleman.

Old Westbury to Defend Polo Title

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 8 (INS).—Sunny Whitney's old Westbury four trounced Seymour Knox's young Aurora team, 14-8, in the last semi-final match of the National Open polo championship tourney on Hitecock field at the Meadowbrook club yesterday.

Old Westbury, defending champions, will encounter Jack Whitney's Greenreens for the second year's succession at International field on Sunday for the title.

AUSTEN LAKE

continues all autumn at each opponent's stadium until the week before the big game when the sheets of information are complete and sent in for digestion at a single gulp.

How much of this intricate stuff the coach successfully passes along to his kids and how much finally percolates has always left doubt in my mind. For each week there comes another dose of defensive data to administer on top of assimilating the mass of the coaches' own offensive teachings. So big time college football today resolves into higher mathematics, with the athletes forced to soak more condensed culture on the gridiron than in any course of the academic curriculum.

Which is why, when the season starts two weeks hence, with slow motion movies, defensive and offensive formulae, daily field rigors and evening skill sessions, the game of football in the major universities is not only big, but the most scientific business known to sport.
